APA Referencing Guide

The following is to be used only as a guide to APA Referencing. For more comprehensive details see the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, held in the Reference section of the Library or visit www.apastyle.org

This is the format that has been decided by Central TAFE, if studying at another institution, please check their guidelines.

American Psychological Association (APA) Referencing is a style of referencing commonly used in the area of Behavioural and Social Sciences. Referencing is a method of acknowledging sources of information used in academic writing, to a prescribed format. Referencing is done to:

- acknowledge sources used
- allow the reader to locate and verify the data
- show the range and depth of your research

To copy work from another source without acknowledging the author of that work is plagiarism. This may result in a hold being placed on an assignment.

Referencing is composed of two parts; in-text referencing and the reference list placed at the end of the assignment. This allows the reader to follow the brief citation in-text to the full set of details in the reference list. Any citation given in text must be included in the reference list, and vice-versa. The only variation to this is for personal communications, such as conversations, lectures or email. These are non-print and are cited in the body of the text only.

In-text Referencing

Where information from another source has been used in the assignment, it is supported with the author's surname, date of publication and page number if using a direct quotation.

- quotations of less than 40 words are set out within the body of the text and enclosed with double quotation marks " ".
- quotations of more than 40 words should be set out in a block, commencing on a new line and indented 5 spaces from the left hand margin. Quotation marks are not used.
- page numbers are not included when you summarize or paraphrase someone's work.

Reference List

The reference list at the end of the work contains the author's surname and initials, title and publication details. These include the edition, place and date of publication. For electronic resources, this can include website addresses, and the date the material was retrieved.

The reference list must be set out:

- in alphabetical order using the surname of the author
- if there is no author, use the title of the material
- italics are to be used for book and journal titles, websites, and also the volume number of journals. The issue number is not written in italics
- lines following the first line of entry must be indented

Author

- Use the surname of the author, followed by the initials.
- Websites may have a sponsor, or be attributed to an organisation, which is then used as the author.

e.g. Martini, F.
Diabetes Australia

Date

- Books: use the copyright date of the work.
- Journals: use the publication dates found on the item.
- WWW sites: use the copyright or update information.
- When a work is not dated it is noted as n.d. (no date).
- Retrieval dates must also be used for websites. This is the date the website was viewed online.

eg. Retrieved Month Day, Year.
Retrieved July 22, 2008.

Titles

- The first letter of the first word of the title is given in capitals, as is the first letter of a word following a colon (the subtitle).
- The first letter of each word of a journal title is written in capitals, not the title of the article within the journal.
- Proper names are written with a capital.

e.g. Diseases: A nursing approach to excellent care.
Australian Nurses Journal

Publisher's locations

- When providing place of publication use the city or town as given on the item.

e.g. London
Melbourne

Publishers

- Give the name of the publisher as briefly as possible. Omit the words Publishers, Co. or Inc., as long as the name is understandable.
- If the author of the work is also the publisher, then write the word Author in the place for the publisher's name

Electronic resources

- Provide the Digital Object Identifier (doi) where possible for online journal articles.
- The doi must be given in full.
- Where the doi is not given use the name of the online database.

e.g. doi: 10.1111/j.1540-4560.2007.00525.x
